

Niswonger Scholar News

Aisling Hagan – (University of Tennessee-Knoxville, Senior) served as one of three panelists for a discussion about the future of global food systems alongside the former CEO of Farm Credit Mid-America, Dr. Bill Johnson, and Associate Dean of the College of Agriculture, Dr. John Stier. The Student Basic Needs Coalition hosted it in the Student Union and invited Aisling to participate based largely on her experience minoring in International Agriculture and Natural Resources, her research in Agricultural Economics, and her experience studying abroad.

Aisling asked that we share with the Board, her deep gratitude to them, for their support, and the work they do for the Foundation. She is incredibly grateful.